INTERESTING RELIC OF OLDEN TIME.

Original Letter from George Washington.

(From the Frankfort (Ky.) Yeoman, August 22.)
The original of the following letter from George Washington to General James Mercer is in the possession of Colonel George Hancock, of Jefferson county, and was recently copied by us for publication with his permission. It is written in the clear, flowing hand of the distinguished writer, and is marked with the peculiar neatness, ease of composition and care in punctuation which characterize all of his writings. The portion relating to private business is valuable only as illustrating the close attention given by him to all such matters, and the excellent judgment with which he conducted his private as well as public affairs. The latter part of the letter possesses valuable historic interest, as relating to a subject in which the fate of the republic was so intimately concerned. The convention to remodel the federal system had been appointed to meet in May, and yet, on the 15th of March, it will be seen, Washington, though appointed by Virginia at the head of her delegation, had declined all entreaties to attend. Within a fortnight after, however, in response to the urgent voice of Virginia, through the Governor, and to letters from friends in various States, he consented to go. On the 28th of March he addressed a letter to the Governor of Virginia (Randolph), in which, after stating the reasons which had induenced him to decline attending the convention, the influence of which he still felt, he added:—"However, as my friends, with a degree of solicitude which is unusual, seem to wish for my attendance on this occasion. I have come to a resolution togo if my health will permit; provided, from the lapse of time between your Excellency's letter and this reply, the executive may not have turned their thoughts to some other character." Of his attendance upon the convention, his election as its presiding officer, and the happy results which followed, history bears full record. General James Mercer, to whom the letter is addressed, al Letter from George Washington. FROM GEORGE WASHINGTON TO GENERAL

JAMES MERCER.

JAMES MERCER.

MOUNT VERNON, 15th March, 1787.

DEAR SIR—Your favor of the 10th came duly to hand, and with very sincere concern I read the account of your ill health; but if your other complaints have left you, the asthma, though troublesome and distressing, is not a dangerous one: I will hope, therefore, that the agreeable season, which is fast approaching. Will perfectly restore you to good approaching, will perfectly restore you to good er cover with this you will receive the origina

Under cover with this you will receive the original deed for the lands on four mile run, which you will please to return when your purposes are answered by the reference to it for drawing the deed of confirmation; for your justice in offering which, and kindness in drawing it, I pray you to accept my warmest acknowledgments.

The mode suggested by you to obtain the bond which I passed to Messra, McCoull & Blair, is, in my judgment, the only proper one; so far as it respects you or the representatives of your father (if the credit is to be applied to that acct.) it is precisely the same whether you acct. with me or them, for the principal and interest of the sum which was to have been paid for the land under the circumstances of your claim—because if the right is determined to be in you, so much will have been discounted from my demand on the estate—if in them, it is only paying to them, as attorneys of Linds & Cozenova what otherwise would have been damanded of me The case with me would be widely different, for if I allow this sum with the interest in a final settlement and my bond remains unretired, I am open to a prosecution thereon; and may be greatly distressed by the actual payment after having allowed it in a discount, before I can have any redress, which would very illy accord with the present state of my finances. Should Mr. McCoull refuse to accede to your proposal, it would imply strongly, his intention of resorting to me for payment.

However desirous I am, and always shall be, to comply with any commands of my country, I do not sonceive that I can, with consistent conduct, attend the proposed convention to be holden in Philadelphia in May next. For besides the declaration which I made however selected. adelphia in May next. For besides the declaration which I made in a very solemn manner when I was about te retire, of bidding adieu to all public employment, I had, just before the appointment of delegates to this convention, written and despatched circular letters to the several State societies of the Cincinnati informing them of my intention not to attend the general meeting which was to take place about the same time and in the same city,—and assigned reasons which apply as forcibly in the one share as the other. Under these circumstances, to attend the convention might be considered disrespectful to a worthy set of men for whose attachment and support on so many occasions I shall ever feel the highest gratitude and affection.

It is unnecessary I hope to assure you of the pleasure I shall always receive at seeing you here whenever business or your health will permit. The latter, pessibly, might be benefitted by the change of air.

With sincere esteem and reg'd, I am, dear sir, y'r most ob't serv't, GEO. WASHINGTON.

General James Mercer.

MISANTHROPIC.

An Old Clergyman and His Daughter Live as Hermits for Twelve Years.

Hermits for Twelve Years.

[From the Chicago Post, August 22.]
The little hamlet of Turner Junction, about thirty niles from Chicago, at the intersection of the hicago, Burlington and Quincy and the Freeort and Pacific Air Line Railroads, is worked up at present with a first class sensation. The bury is as follows. The reader may make dowances for possible exaggerations:—An old man named R. A. Watkins, a Congregational dirgyman, and his daughter, Elizabeth, are the subjects. It is said that for twelve years past they have lived in entire seclusion on a farm not quite a mile from the Junction, their sole diet consisting of corn bread. The old gentleman is well educated, having graduated at Middlebury College at eventy-five. For many years he preached in Vermont, removing to this State in 1855 with his wife and daughter, and buying the farm now occupied by them. For over a year the family mingled with the villagers, the clergyman often preaching the villagers, the clergyman often preaching witt the villagers, the clergyman often preaching in he villager, while his accomplished daughter, thetabout sixteen years old, played the melodeon. Theold man's wife then died, and from that time his whoe life was changed. He was seldom seen about theid man's wife then died, and from that time his whoe life was changed. He was soldom seen about the illage, and his daughter never. He came occasionly to town to obtain sugar, tea and alcohel in a shirt. He always appeared dirty, and wor a heavy shawl about his head at all seasons for some years no special notice was taken of tis strange conduct, until finally about two year ago the people became "worked up" about the mater and a committee was appointed to investigate They gained access to the house with some littleifficulty and found the rooms in a fifthy state, occuled by cats and hons, in the same apartment withthe human occupants. The daughter rebuck them for interfering, when they remonstrated on ic course of life the couple were pursuing and sentence. While this life continued the farm as nebted to various parties, who were not load to approach the house, nor was any one else, so ta fortnight ago a lad, in passing the house, as slied by the old man and told that they were ck and needed and. He alarmed the village, and annot he citizens and a physician went to their aid. The old man was found to be one mass of sores and th, and was lying on a lounge covered with verm. On a most flishy bed lay the daughter. The cats, twenty-five in number by count, were throw out and the hens made to follow. The people were ken to a smaller and cleaner room, and an able idded force at once set to work cleaning up the house All the clothing was burned. The old man's cloth were removed and his body found to be discolors and covered with fifth and running sores. The cughter was in a less horrible condition, but her lely was discolored in places, and had not been washed, she saud, for six years, Her undelothing had been constantly worn for four monts. The old man is nearly seventy, the daughter the papes twenty-eight. The former is so reduced that a will scarcely live a month. The daughter it is thight possible to save with proper medical care. She I accomplished and educated and would still be arornament to seviety. The man

ATAL GAS EXPLOSION AT SOUTHBRIDGE, MASS.

The ollowing particulars of the terrible gas ex-losionat the Hampton Woollen Corporation Globe Illag Southbridge, are taken from the Worcester Insette.

plosiciat the Hampton Woollen Corporation Globe Gazetic.

Mr. iartin White, master machinist of the mills, took i force of six men on Saturday and proceededs clean out the large gas reservoir for the coming winter season. This reservoir is used only in the witer time, and some gas that had been made last yer still remained in the receptacle. It was a very lage affair, being between thirty and forty feet in diameter, and it was located in a large building in close poximity to the "new mill," so called. The men wre set at work at the pumps between the reservor and the sides of the building for the purpose offrawing all the water from the pit. The "man tole" at the top was left open, and it was lought that the gas would all escape throught. In this belief Mr. White went on the top of the reservoir with a lantern and a rope, and lowered the light down through the hole. Little hid behink of the fearful consequences that were to result rom this bit of imprudence, Slowly the light escenced, when suddenly a great fash of light was seen bythe men at the pumps to come up through the hold, fillowed by a deafening report, and then they new in more. Those who happened to be in the ricinity of the building say that the whole structure ose fly feet in the air, Judging from the known neight of the buildings near by, and came down to be ground with a crash, a complete ruin. Mr. White eign on top of the reservoir, was blown up with, and its body fell back into the pit. The workmen were throw out through the opening sides of the uilding by the force of the explosion to a distance I several feet. The report of the exploding gas was eard several miles distant. The ruins were set on re by the burning gas, but the village fire company, eing prompty on the spot, commenced to play upon he fire and soon extinguished it. The melanchoiy sarch forthe body of Mr. White was then made, and ther remying the charred timbers it was found. His ead was crushed in, evidently by being thrown almst the raters of the building, and the body was ruised I truly be said of min that the workmen were rendered bless by the accident. John Brogan was terribly ed and otherwise injured by failing timbers, as taken out by the roadside, where he died in pain in about half an hour. John Brown, intin the same manner, died during the night.

When the train left this morning, John Devine was at the point of death. Hamilton Holmes, Lucian Clemence and — Ricord were the other injured persons. They all received severe remembrances of the accident, yet not so serious as to place their lives in danger. Mr. White leaves a wife and three children, the oldest eight years old and the youngest two years old. Mr. Brogan leaves a wife and alarge family. Considering that the dead were all workingmen and the fact that they all leave families behind them with but little to support them, the calamity assumes a more sorrowful appearance than if they had been single men. None of the men who are now alive were married.

Freaks of a Murderee.—Herndon, the alleged murderer of Miss Lumsden, has become so "peart" since he returned to the jail and its excellent and abundant fare, that he has turned artist and adorned his cell with a charceal cartoon, entitled "Herndon in the Woods," which is said to represent to the life, ludicrously yet painfully, the terror and anxiety the poor creature endured for days when the rustling of a leat, the breaking of a stick or the failing of a rotten limb threw him into an agony of right. The jailor is said to be thrown into convuisions of laughter every time he sees this picture, and Herndon himself enjoys it.—Fredericksburg (Va.) Ledger.
